

IF VERIZON WERE DOING ITS JOB INSTEAD OF CUTTING OURS, you might already have FiOS.

Verizon promised New York City it would make FiOS service available to every New Yorker by the end of 2014. But New York City audited the company, finding it has not fulfilled its commitment, violating its agreement with the City.

Millions of New Yorkers don't have access to the service as promised. Over the past decade, when Verizon should have been building FiOS to all New Yorkers, the company cut thousands of jobs in New York City. Now, Verizon is demanding to eliminate job security, which would allow the company to destroy thousands more jobs.

We need to let Verizon know it's time to stop cutting good middle class jobs in NYC and make the investment necessary to keep its promises and give FiOS to every New Yorker who wants it.
